16 TVs making a difference

Small comforts that make a meaningful difference

Patients in Taupō Hospital’s inpatient unit have shared positive feedback about the comfort and connection their TVs provide.

Connection to the outside world

One patient who is profoundly deaf found the subtitles a huge comfort during her hospital stay. They helped her feel connected to the outside world at a time when she was vulnerable.

Familiarity when feeling unwell

Another patient was very unwell and unsure of her surroundings while her family was away. Being able to access her own TV brought a sense of familiarity and comfort during a difficult time.

Enjoying the sporting action

Patients also appreciate being able to watch sporting events, especially All Blacks and NPC games, from their hospital beds.
